The First Entry in a Brand New Urban Fantasy from Kentucky Author Hits Shelves

Sara O. Thompson weaves a tale of mystery, magic, intrigue, and bourbon with the Otherwhere series

Louisville, KY - Monday, January 23rd, 2017 –

Sara O. Thompson hails from Louisville, Kentucky, and is looking to make a mark with her debut novel and the first entry in her planned Otherwhere series with 'Muddy Waters' releasing April 4th, 2017 from Curiosity Quills Press.

"Adult urban fantasy has been on such an upswing lately, as much on TV (with Sense8 and The OA immediately coming to mind) as in literature," stated Lisa Gus, CEO of Curiosity Quills Press.

The book's tagline sums up the novel concisely: "Solving crimes, doing magic, drinking bourbon. It's dirty work, but somebody has to do it." Thompson's foray into the occult and fantasy realm is something that caught her publisher's eye.

"We at CQ are so delighted to find ourselves on this bandwagon with Sara Thompson's Muddy Waters," continues Gus, "a tale that is as much a fun story I personally couldn't tear myself away from, as a thinly disguised look at how we, as a society, need to move forward in this era of extreme nationalism coupled with amazing acts of selflessness and charity. Oh, and that the author hails from my hometown? Well, that's just an added bonus!"

Muddy Waters will be available wherever books are sold on April 4th, 2017.

About Sara O. Thompson:

When I'm not writing, I perform improv comedy, tell stories on stage, ballroom dance, and craft. I also have identical twin sons. My husband is an ICU nurse and is a great person to be married to if you are an improv person, a book lover, and a nerd. He's also handy in medical emergencies. My favorite authors in no particular order:

Jane Austen, Neil Gaiman, China Mieville, Gabriel Garcia Marquez, Pablo Neruda, Charles Dickens, and Flannery O'Connor.
